INTRODUCTION

Development is a conscious and planned process of modernity towards a better change than before. Development is a national effort to realize human ascend. Due to the essential nature of humans as multidimensional creatures, national development is a place for accumulation of various development programs originating from regional development (Nelly Lestari, 2021: 33).

In order for development in urban areas to proceed according to plan, it is necessary to have a unified factor that influences the production of urban space and a special focus on the role of the state, the private sector and society (Nntaka et al., 2023). Then decentralized urban planning is a policy tool and practice used to regulate urban infrastructure for sustainable development (Abubakari et al., 2023)

One of the areas that is currently having development is Sawahlunto City. Sawahlunto City is a city located in West Sumatra Province. The development of Sawahlunto City is inseparable from the history of mining. Before discovering coal, Sawahlunto had no any development at all, but after an inspection by Ir. De Groet in

Sawahlunto in 1868, for the first time the City of Sawahlunto became the first coal mining production city in West Sumatra which was inaugurated in 1891 (Andi Asoka, 2005: 3)

Sawahlunto city is developing into one of the historical old cities in Indonesia currently which has many cultural heritage objects. Some cultural heritage objects in Sawahlunto include: Mbah Suro Mining Pit, Sawahlunto Railway Museum, old buildings around the Youth Market, Silo Square and the Goedang Ransoem Museum located on Jalan Abdul Rahman Hakim, Kelurahan Air Dingin , Lembah Segar District, Sawahlunto City, West Sumatra (Uiz, 2014: 3-4).

Since the Ombilin mine in Sawahlunto stopped operating in the early 1990s, the infrastructure built during the Dutch Colonial government was not functioning as it should. Many buildings that used to be mining infrastructure have changed functions, both as government administration offices and banking offices to community settlements and mining infrastructure buildings have been turned into museums, for example, Goedang Ransoem Museum (Adrial, 2014: 6).

On one hand, local economic development has become a renewed interest in academics and policy debate (Salder, 2023). On the other hand, the Regional Planning, Research and Development Agency (BARENLITBANGDA) in the regions is in a strategic position in government and has a central role in managing development and serving the community (et al., 2020). This paper aims to explore the role of the Regional Planning, Research and Development Agency (BARENLITBANGDA) in the Economic Development of Sawahlunto City.

Theoretical Study

1. Role

The role is defined as a device of behavior that is expected to be possessed by people who are domiciled in society. Position in this case is expected as a certain position in society which may be high, mediocre or low. Position is a container whose contents are certain rights and obligations. While these rights and obligations can be regarded as roles. Therefore, someone who has a certain position can be said to be a role holder. A right is actually an authority to do or not to do, while an obligation is a burden or duty (R. Sutyo Bakhir, 2009: 348).

2. Development

Development shows the occurrence of an advanced process based on its own strength, depending on humans and their social structure. Development is not top-down, but depends on "inner will", the process of self-emancipation. Thus, active and creative participation in the development process is only possible if it occurs due to the maturation process (Kumba Digidowiseiso, 2019: 3-4).

3. Development Planning

Early planning, especially at the end of the 19th century and after the second world war, focused on aspects of the design of the physical environment and was referred to as the morphological conception of space stage. Over time, planning develops because of human needs, so planning is needed by humans so that the potential for failure is smaller in efforts to fulfill needs (Deddy Supriyadi, 2004: 21).

4. BARENLITBANGDA

BARENLITBANGDA is an acronym for Badan Perencanaan, Penelitian dan Pengembangan Daerah which means Regional Planning, Research and Development Agency. Formed in 1980 by Presidential Decree (1980:27). The Regional Development Planning Agency is a regional technical institution related to research and regional development planning led by an agency head who is under responsible to the mayor/governor through the regional secretary (Hisyam & Andri, 2022). Barenlitbangda has main duty and organizational structure in it. They include the main duties and functions of the head of the agency, the main functions of the secretariat, the main functions in the economic sector, the physical and infrastructure fields, the social and cultural fields, and the field of income development and reporting research, also the field of capital development. Barenlitbangda's job is not far from the elaboration of its acronym which will be related to planning, research and development of a region (Kuncoro, 2009: 21).

RESEARCH METHODS

The writer's research method is descriptive qualitative research. The instrument in this study was the researcher himself. The writer collects data, reduces data, presents data and analyzes data. Authors are assisted in carrying out activities with assistive devices such as field notes, and assistive devices such as cameras. The author uses data collection techniques in the form of interviews and documentation to collect information.

Data analysis is the process of systematically compiling data from interviews, field notes, and documentation and drawing conclusions so that they can be understood and shared with others (Sugiyono, 2015: 89). Data reduction, data presentation, and drawing conclusions are steps in managing data analysis. The writer uses the source triangulation method.

Employment is one of the biggest problems of concern to local governments, where this employment issue is a very sensitive issue that must be resolved using various approaches so that the problem does not spread which has an impact on reducing people's welfare and security. Population consumption pattern is also one of the socio-economic indicators of society which is strongly influenced by local culture and environment. Environmental culture and behavior will shape certain patterns of habits in community groups. The composition of household expenditure can be used as a measure to assess the level of economic welfare of the community. Housing and the environment are organized to ensure the realization of livable and affordable

The definition of housing itself is a collection of houses as part of settlements, both urban and rural, which are equipped with infrastructure, facilities and public facilities as a result of efforts to fulfill livable houses. Besides as a place for living, the house can also show one's social status. A person's social status is positively related to the quality/condition of the house.
